

This is a detailed topographical map of the James River region in Virginia. The map shows the James River flowing from the northwest towards the southeast, where it empties into the Chesapeake Bay. The river is depicted with blue lines and is surrounded by numerous islands and necks, including Farrar Island, Jones Neck, and Curles Neck. The map is divided into three main counties: Henrico to the north, Chesterfield in the center, and Prince George to the south. Major roads and railroads are shown as black lines, and various landmarks such as Chaffin Bluff, Drewry Bluff, and the National Cemetery are labeled. The map also features contour lines indicating elevation and several smaller creeks and branches of the river. The title '(Richmond)' is located at the top center, indicating the map's orientation relative to the city of Richmond.
